

SIERRA VIDEO ROUTERS SELECTED FOR MISSION-CRITICAL ENVIRONMENT

In a U.S. Army test center the size of Rhode Island, missile and ammunition testing takes place every day. The testers' jobs are to witness what actually happens with the trials, but the danger, noise level and intensity prevents them from being physically close to the weapons. Sequoia Routers from Sierra Video Systems, a Kramer Electronics Company, in conjunction with an intricate fiber-optic system provide a close-up view of the tests and the results – from a safe distance.

To create this safe environment, a series of viewing stations was established throughout the test center. Fiber-optic cables transmit high-resolution video from each testing station to the command center for testers to view. The cameras are plugged into the Sierra Video Sequoia Routers, which distribute the video signals back to the assigned monitors at the command center. Testers can then review the video any number of times and in various ways in a protected, noise-free environment.

In a mission-critical environment like U.S. Army weapons testing, the Sierra Video Sequoia Routers prove that high-resolution video makes it just like "being there." ■

THE KRAMER AND SIERRA VIDEO SYSTEMS SOLUTION...

RELIABILITY AND INTEGRATION WITH A DEDICATED PERSONAL TOUCH

Kramer Electronics and Sierra Video Systems' products are the heart of any system providing high quality signal management solutions. The company's innovative ideas and unique solutions for each individual challenge make us industry leaders.

Kramer and Sierra Video demonstrate reliability in every way – from the product technology to the product delivery and from the first personal contact to after-sale service and support, the door to Kramer and Sierra Video is always open.

Integrators and customers rely on us to:

- Create innovative product solutions
- Integrate market feedback into new products
- Develop dependable products
- Deliver quickly and on-time
- Provide value
- Maintain strong relationships
- Go the extra mile - each and every time.

The Kramer and Sierra Video team views every project as a unique customer need. These needs are met with carefully designed solutions that result from a deep commitment to our customers, from product development to customer service. We pride ourselves on making connections...through our product and our people.

For more information about Kramer products and support, visit www.kramerelectronics.com.

For more information about Sierra Video Systems products and support, visit www.sierravideosystems.com.

